5 THINGS TO KNOW

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT, REPORTER

In the wake of the news that the U.S. government was separating migrant families at the southern border, I've reported on a variety of actions taken in Boston opposing that practice. People across Boston are standing up for these families, and in the latest effort, members of the Northeastern University community are planning to protest the school's ties with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). I spoke with a Northeastern faculty member about why hundreds are calling on the school to end its research contract with the federal immigration agency. Read more inside and at metroboston.us.

RONALDO LEAVES REAL MADRID FOR JUVENTUS

L Cristiano Ronaldo has joined Italian champions Juventus from Real Madrid on a four-year contract for $117.34 million signaling the end of nine years at the Spanish giants filled with trophies and goals. The two European giants on Tuesday announced the much-anticipated deal for the five-times world player of the year who joined Real from Manchester United in 2008 for a then-world-record ($106 million). The 33-year-old Portugal forward is the Spanish club's all-time top scorer with 451 goals in all competitions and won two La Liga titles and four Champions League trophies with them. The signing of the latest Ballon d'Or winner and top scorer in the Champions League for the last six seasons represents a major coup for Juve, who have had a stranglehold on the Italian title since 2012 but have not won Europe's top prize since 1996. The signing also strikes a blow for the profile of Serie A against La Liga, which has now lost two of its three most famous players in the last year after Paris St Germain signed Neymar from Barcelona for a world-record fee last August.

OREGON RANCHERS PARDONED BY TRUMP

2 President Donald Trump on Tuesday pardoned two imprisoned Oregon ranchers whose sentencing on arson convictions sparked the 2016 occupation of a wildlife refuge, part of a long-simmering dispute over federal land policies in the West. The armed standoff at the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge in southeast Oregon followed a judge's ruling that sent Dwight Hammond and his son, Steven, back to prison to serve more time after their initial release. Police shot one of the occupiers dead during the 41-day midwinter protest. The takeover was another flare-up in a decades-old conflict over federal control of millions of acres of public land in the Western U.S. The leaders of the Malheur standoff, including activists Ammon and Ryan Bundy, were cleared of federal charges for their role in the protest in October 2016. Ammon Bundy on Tuesday called the pardon "long overdue." "We went up there to prevent the atrocity from happening to begin with, and if people would have listened to us, the Hammonds wouldn't have to have gone through this suffering," Bundy said in a telephone interview.

KAVANAUGH MAY FACE CONTENTIOUS CASES SOON

4 President Donald Trump's Supreme Court nominee may not have to wait too long for controversial cases if he is confirmed to the job, with disputes involving abortion, immigration, gay rights, voting rights and transgender troops possibly heading toward the justices soon. Republicans are hoping Brett Kavanaugh, the conservative U.S. appeals court judge selected on Monday by Trump to replace retiring Justice Anthony Kennedy, will be confirmed by the Senate before the next Supreme Court term opens in October. There are no blockbusters among the 38 cases already on the docket for the justices, but they could add disputes on controversial issues being appealed from lower courts. Legal battles are developing over state laws restricting abortion including one in Arkansas that effectively bans medication-induced abortions. The justices in May opted not to intervene in a case challenging that law, waiting instead for lower courts to rule, but it could return to them in the future. Other abortion-related cases could reach the court within two years.

BILLS' MCCOY DENIES ASSAULT ALLEGATIONS

5 Buffalo Bills running back LeSean McCoy issued a statement on Instagram on Tuesday denying allegations of domestic violence, child abuse, animal cruelty and performance-enhancing drug use made by another Instagram user. The user posted an image of a woman with cuts and bruises on her face and accused McCoy of being responsible for the abuse. The post went on to accuse McCoy of beating his dog into kidney failure, "viciously" beating his son and using illegal steroids. "For the record, the totally baseless and offensive claims made against me today on social media are completely false," McCoy said in his response. "Further more, I have not had any direct contact with any of the people involved for months." The woman in the photo is said to be Delicia Cordon, a previously known girlfriend of McCoy's, and the poster says she's a close friend of Cordon. The Bills reportedly are aware of the allegations and are looking into them. McCoy, 29, rushed for 1,138 yards and six touchdowns last season. He's a six-time Pro Bowl selection in his nine NFL seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles and Bills.

Transgender anti-discrimination, nurse limits highlight Nov. ballot question list

Voters across the commonwealth will weigh in on three ballot questions in November.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Though November seems far away, the debate over which state ballot questions voters will see then has stretched on, but the list has officially been narrowed.

Secretary of State William Galvin assigned this week the official Massachusetts ballot questions and their assigned numbers, which voters will decide Nov. 6.

Voters across the state will weigh in on three Massachusetts ballot questions this November. Here's what they are:

Ballot Question 1: Patient-to-Nurse Limits
Voting "yes" on Question 1 on the November ballot would limit the number of patients that could be assigned to each registered nurse in Massachusetts hospitals and other health care facilities.

This question is expected to pit the state's health care industry against the Massachusetts Nurses Association. More than 75 percent of Massachusetts nurses believe that RNs are assigned too many patients to effectively care for at one time, according to the association, and 90 percent of RNs say they don't have enough time to "properly comfort and care for patients and families due to unsafe patient assignments."

"This has been a long time coming, and nurses have been advocating for a YES for patient safety for decades," said Donna

Kelly-Williams, RN at the Cambridge Hospital Birth Center and president of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, in a statement after the announcement that the question would appear on the ballot. "As an active bedside nurse, I see it every day on the hospital floor and I hear it every day from my colleagues across the state. It's time for hospital executives to put patient care over profits."

Donna Kelly-Williams

Ballot Question 2: Commission on Limiting Election Spending and Corporate Rights
If Question 2 is passed by voters, it would create a commission that looks into the effects of political spending across the state and which would recommend changes to that practice.

The commission, if created, would recommend amendments to the Constitution "to establish that corporations do not have the same Constitutional rights as human beings and that campaign contributions and expenditures may be regulated," according to Galvin's office.

This effort is backed by the American Promise initiative, which is leading campaigns across the country to appear on multiple state ballots. The initiative aims to add a 28th amendment to the Constitution essentially overturning the 2010 U.S. Supreme Court decision in Citizens United v. the Federal Election Commission.

Ballot Question 3: Transgender Anti-Discrimination
Question 3 asks whether the Massachusetts' Transgender Anti-Discrimination Law should still be in place. The law, which was passed in 2016, provides protections to the transgender community by banning discrimination on the basis of gender identity in places of "public accommodation," like bathrooms, restaurants and parks.

A "yes" vote on the referendum would keep the law in place and a "no" vote would repeal it.

The effort to repeal the law is backed by groups like Keep MA Safe and the Massachusetts Family Institute, which claim the law is dangerous to children and raises privacy and safety concerns.

Northeastern students, staff to protest school contract with ICE

Many in community oppose school's $7.7 million research contract with ICE.

kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Northeastern University students, staff and faculty will gather on the Boston campus on Wednesday to protest the school's $7.7 million research contract with the United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE).

More than 2,000 members of the Northeastern community have signed an open letter demanding the university drop the contract and distance itself from the federal immigration agency in light of the government's recent actions of separating migrant families at the southern U.S. border and keeping children in cages.

Now, hundreds will gather at Northeastern's Krentzman Quadrangle at noon on Wednesday to voice their opposition.

"People have tried to defend [the contract] as something that's relatively innocuous," said Dr. Mary Annas, a faculty member in the school's English department. "Yet I personally believe that any collusion with ICE, taking money from ICE, taking money from any organization that defends ICE is collaboration with them, until they stop separating families."

Annas plans to attend the Wednesday protest. She is not one of the organizers, she said, but learned about the demonstration and open letter through a mass email that circulated through the school community.

The contract with ICE awards Northeastern more than $7,750,000 to fund data mapping research on "dual-use technologies," which could be used to make weapons, that are exported from the United States. The research is unrelated to immigration, the school says. The contract began in Sept. 2016 and is set to go until August 2021.

"The contract is with ICE because they are the agency that is responsible for collecting data on exported goods," Northeastern Professor Glenn Pierce, who is conducting the research, told State House News Service. "We're discussing something that has no overlap with [the protesters'] concerns."

Still, members of the Northeastern community say any connection with ICE effectively doubles as support for the agency's recent actions.

Students, faculty and staff are expected to protest at Northeastern University on Wednesday. WIKIMEDIA COMMONS

"I see a direct connection to what's going on at the border, and I would love to see the university give the money back."

"They are taking money from ICE indirectly or directly, and I know that there are people who will be offended [by the protest] because they will say that this kind of research should be supported by every university, that every point of view should be voiced," Annas said. "But at the same time, I see a direct connection to what's going on at the border, and I would love to see the university give the money back."

On a Facebook event for the protest, students are encouraging current students and alumni who cannot attend to take a picture of themselves holding a sign calling on Northeastern to "Drop the contract with ICE" and to share it on Twitter with the hashtag #CanceltheContracts.

"Every university has a responsibility to determine what constitutes ethical research. At this moment in history, when families are being torn apart and children are being locked in cages, collaborating with an agency like ICE is clearly unethical," said Lester Smiley, a Northeastern University School of Law student helping organize the protest, in a statement. "The administration is trying to spin this to the press and sweep it under the rug, but that's not going to work. We won't stop until the university makes clear that this contract will be canceled, and no further contracts with ICE will be pursued in the future."

Tony Maws' tips for navigating local farmers markets

On any given summer afternoon, you'll likely find Tony Maws shopping for fresh produce at farmers markets in Boston, Cambridge or Somerville. The James Beard Award-winning chef behind Craigie on Main and Kirkland Tap & Trotter is a big fan of farmers markets because the produce sold are better for the environment and help support the local community.

"They're tastier. They're better for you. They've gone less miles," Maws tells Metro. "For a restaurant, it's easier to make a phone call, call a purveyor, and they're going to tell you that they've got local this, or organic that. Most of it isn't that local or you don't know when it was picked, and that's certainly the easy way to do it. There are a lot of people who talk the talk who don't walk the walk, but you will always see myself and our staff at the farmers market."

Ahead, the acclaimed chef and restaurateur shares his tips for making the most of your farmers market experience.

Do your research

"I don't just buy from any farms, because I don't believe that a carrot is awesome just because it was grown locally," Maws says. "It's like everything else. There's good carrots and there's not-as-good carrots, and different farms do different things."

Tony Maws

According to Maws, finding the best produce requires a bit of research and some "trial and error." It's also important to ask questions and develop relationships with the various vendors so you can find the best products possible week in and week out.

Eat seasonally

Unlike the grocery store, farmers markets in Boston and around the Bay State are only open during a "five or a six month window," according to Maws. So take advantage of the spring and summer by picking produce that hit their peak during these seasons.

In the summer, Maws recommends picking up raspberries, blueberries, as well as zucchinis. The chef suggests tomatoes and corn as well, however, wait until August to find the "really good ones." Cauliflower is another top pick for summer produce. "You grab a head of cauliflower from the farmers market, it was picked that morning, and it's just a different product," Maws says.

Be flexible

Maws admits that you won't find everything on your list since the produce change depending on the season, what's ripe and other conditions. The chef believes shoppers should be flexible because you'll still find fresh items that you weren't necessarily looking for.

"You might get there and they might have sold out of it or whatever," he says. "Meanwhile, if you look left and right, [there are] 20 other things you could cook dinner. So it's not a bad thing." MATT JULI

What to expect after 'The Handmaid's Tale' season 2 finale

Hulu's provocative dystopian series is coming to a close ... for now.

letters@metro.us

Following Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy's retirement announcement in early July, the already-popular comparisons between American politics and Hulu's "The Handmaid's Tale" were kicked up a notch. As Alex Zaragoza wrote for the Daily Beast, "The current season of 'The Handmaid's Tale' has been brutal. And so has America as of late."

Whether these comparisons are too far-fetched or too on-the-nose, one thing is clear: "The Handmaid's Tale" has become a pop-culture phenomenon. Even if watching it is as "masochistic" as Zaragoza claims, critics and Hulu subscribers alike can't take their eyes off of it. Which is why, as the second season concludes with "The Word," it should come as no surprise that a third season is on the way.

In May, Variety reported that Hulu had renewed the Emmy and Peabody Award-winning series for a third season. Elisabeth Moss and the other major cast members who survive the second season finale's events are all expected to return, but aside from the renewal itself, nothing is known about "The Handmaid's Tale" season three.

Considering what happened in last week's penultimate "Postpartum," however, we can make a few guesses as to what "The Word" has in store for the willing and unwilling residents of Gilead. Who knows? There might even be something there that hints at what's to come next season.

The second-to-last episode of season two ended with the execution of Nick's child bride Eden Spencer, and her lover Isaac, one of the Guardians. Though Nick and Eden forgave each other for their sleights, she and Isaac refused to renounce their sins before the community and were summarily drowned. It's not one of the most shocking images produced by "The Handmaid's Tale," but it has a surprisingly strong effect on Offred/June (Moss) and the other Handmaids.

As writer and producer Eric Tuchman told

"The Handmaid's Tale" season 2 finale premieres today. HULU

the Hollywood Reporter, witnessing Eden's death brings June and Serena Waterford (Yvonne Strahovski), the wife of the former's handler Commander Fred Waterford (Joseph Fiennes), together.

"It's only Eden's execution, with both of them witnessing this horrible crime, that brings these two women together," he said. "It's such a lovely image of the two of them, these two women who are so often in that opposition, together with [June's] baby after the execution."

Viewers will have to wait until Wednesday's "The Word" to see precisely how this new dynamic between June and Serena alters the course of the entire series, but judging by Tuchman's hints here, Eden's death is going to trigger massive ramifications for "The Handmaid's Tale." Not just for season 2, but for whatever he and the other writers cook up for the guaranteed third season sometime in the next year.

"The Handmaid's Tale" season two finale streams Wednesday on Hulu. Season three will premiere sometime in 2019.

Drug Companies Fear Release Of New $2 Sex Pill For Older Men

Men in clinical trial see huge boost in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity without side effects.

NEW YORK - It's hard to believe that in America today an affordable pill that could improve the sex lives of millions of men is in danger of being yanked from the shelves. And it's just because big drug companies fear for their profits.

The pharmaceutical industry is desperately

Pharma's efforts, sales have already exceeded expectations.

Exciting Benefits

There are very good reasons why sales are booming and drug companies want it gone. Apart from costing just two dollars per daily dose, the clinical results confirm JackedUp's active ingredient is very impressive. It Viagra) and make big profits. Plus, if you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. If you can safely boost your testosterone, you won't need their expensive pills. That's the very reason big business is trying to have it pulled from the shelves.

Strong Clinical Results Worry Big Pharma

Recent clinical trials on JackedUp's active ingredient have made the drug companies more desperate. The trial results were published in major medical journals, and doctors are now recommending JackedUp to patients.

The testing was done on men 40 - 65 years old, and the results were remarkable. The men who took the active ingredient in JackedUp reported major improvements in their sex lives. Their ability to get and keep erections went up by over 200%. Libido and sex drive surged. Even staying power and stamina during sex more than doubled!

Head of product development, Dave McNeill, said the big drug companies weren't worried at first. "They didn't care because the active ingredient can take a few weeks before many men really feel the benefits. But these awesome clinical trials really got their attention. They're learning A LOT of men will wait a few weeks if it means avoiding negative side effects and saving money."

How It Works

The "JackedUp" pill works by helping older men produce more testosterone. It doesn't force dangerous fake testosterone into your body like injections do. Instead, it works with your body to produce testosterone naturally. And the results have been extraordinary. It's like your body reboots itself to feel like it did in the prime of your life.

Initial Users Are Thrilled...And Worried

"JackedUp has been awesome for my sex drive and performance! I'm worried it may not be available in the future. The idea that it may be taken away just to secure some big drug company's profits is very frustrating."

- Rob H., 49 years old, Colorado Springs, CO

"My wife and I were both sexually vibrant until I had prostate cancer. After my surgery we tried everything my doctor recommended but nothing worked. Within a few weeks of taking JackedUp, everything has been functioning beautifully and we've been riding high ever since!"

- Ken S., 78 years old, Phoenix, AZ

Doctors Speak Out

Drug companies are also concerned that doctors are now recommending JackedUp. The active ingredient has strong clinical results and lacks the side effects seen in current drugs on the market. This makes it an easy option for doctors to suggest.

Big Pharma Worried: Older men are having better sex after taking the newly released $2 pill called JackedUp. Clinical trials show active ingredient triggers surge in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity in older men.

Dr. Laguna-Bedia, a specialist in internal medicine says, "A lot of men think their lack of interest and inability to perform are simply parts of aging. This is just not true. JackedUp can help these men regain a healthy appetite for sex and the physical ability to perform."

"JackedUp works by boosting key male hormones without side effects. The benefits of these hormones to sexual health are well known, but they actually do more than that. Men also report more energy, less body fat and higher motivation," said Dr. G. Pereira, a renowned surgeon in Florida.

Dr. Jacob Moss notes, "I recommend JackedUp if you're struggling with getting and keeping erections or low libido. It's also a great option for men who want to last longer and have more control over when they orgasm."

Special Opportunity for Our Readers

Drug companies are fighting hard to get rid of this product. This is making inventory disappear fast. Thankfully, a special discounted supply has been reserved for Metro Boston readers. But only for those who call within the next 48 hours.

This is the best opportunity to try JackedUp risk-free with their 100% results guarantee.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives all men an equal chance to try JackedUp.

Starting at 6:00 am today the order hotline will be open for the next 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE 1-888-973-4788 and the company will do the rest.

Due to the possibility of JackedUp being pulled from the shelf, phone lines are often busy. If you call and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. Current supplies of JackedUp are limited, and callers that don't get through to the order hotline within the next 48 hours will be forced to wait for more inventory to be produced. This can take as long as 6 weeks.

"If you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. Drug companies do NOT want men to know about this affordable new pill..."

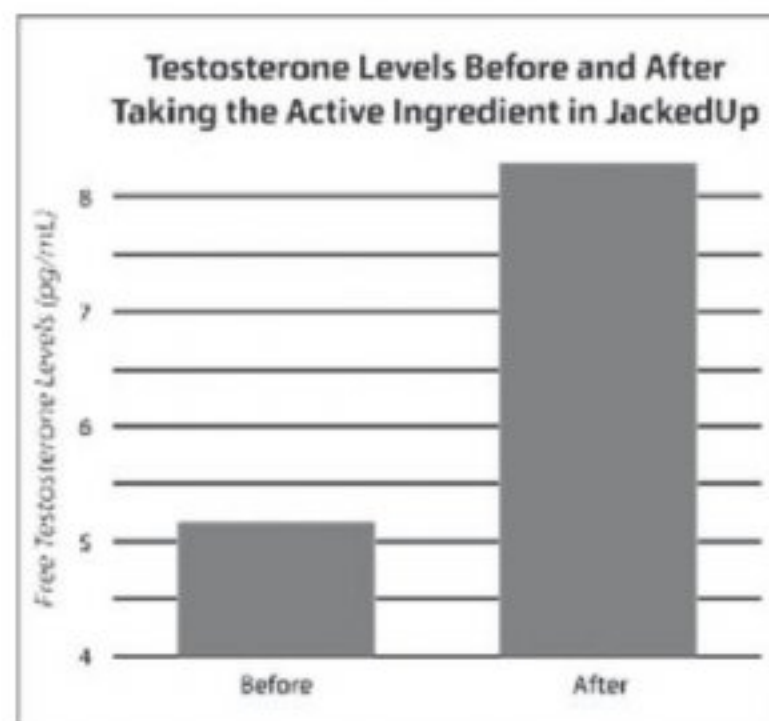

trying to stop shipments of the remarkable new "JackedUp" pill. Big Pharma is worried because men are reporting increased sex drive, stronger erections and more stamina - all without the side-effects and $40-per-pill price tag associated with drugs like Viagra. Clinical results show men feel these benefits within just a few weeks of taking JackedUp's active ingredient.

The pill, made for men over 50, was released early last month. Despite Big

The product also has a unique ability to help men feel more passion, desire, and sex drive. These impressive benefits come from boosting testosterone levels by up to a whopping 193%. Doctors are astounded by its effects.

Why do drug companies want this pill stopped? Since the "JackedUp" pill is natural, drug companies can't patent it (like they did with

WHERE DO CELTICS FIT IN NEW NBA LANDSCAPE?

Kevin McHale, who knows Celtics boss Danny Ainge better than just about anyone on this planet, has said in recent years that Ainge's patience at roster building has been the key to his success.

"Danny is doing it the right way," McHale told NBC Sports Boston in 2016. "He's not panicking ... which is the opposite of the guy I know. Danny is one of the most impulsive people I know and I'm shocked he doesn't make a trade every week. He is a disciplined general manager, which is funny because he is a very undisciplined person."

Despite sheer chaos last off-season, in trading away Isaiah Thomas and Avery Bradley and acquiring Kyrie Irving and Gordon Hayward – among others – expect Ainge to stand pat with this current group for this coming season at least.

A trade for rental superstar Kawhi Leonard is not happening. It didn't seem likely two weeks ago, and it certainly doesn't seem likely now that Golden State landed DeMarcus Cousins in free agency.

In addition to being patient, Ainge is a realist. He knows that the Warriors would have been tough to beat in a potential NBA Finals matchup even if they didn't add the second or third best free agent on the market.

The Celtics, who I fully expect to win the East in 2018-19, will take their best shot at Kevin Durant and Co. in the Finals. They might even be able to steal a game or two based on Brad Stevens' success against the Dubs in recent years.

But we are talking about trying to take down the greatest roster ever assembled, here. We are talking about taking down the 96 Bulls or the 86 Celtics.

The 2018-19 Celtics will have an outstanding roster, but I don't think it will be one of the best ever assembled. They're just not on THAT level.

So, expect Ainge to take a Patriots approach to this thing moving forward. Be in title contention every single year. Some years you will break through and win it all. Some years you will not. Just keep taking your shots for the next decade.

Even if this nightmare scenario of Kyrie Irving leaving in free agency next summer happens, the Celtics will be set up perfectly to simply insert a different superstar-level player immediately either via free agency or trade. You can bet there will be plenty of superstar-level talents banging at the door to join the best team in the Eastern Conference – a team that features rising stars Jayson Tatum and Jaylen Brown. Perhaps even the biggest fish of all – Anthony Davis – becomes available in the next few years.

Now is the time for Patient Danny. And it's the Danny I think we're going to get.

In accordance with Federal civil rights law and U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) civil rights regulations and policies, the USDA, its Agencies, offices, and employees, and institutions participating in or administering USDA programs are prohibited from discriminating based on race, color, national origin, sex, disability, age, or reprisal or retaliation for prior civil rights activity in any program or activity conducted or funded by USDA.

Persons with disabilities who require alternative means of communication for program information (e.g. Braille, large print, audiotape, American Sign Language, etc.), should contact the Agency (State or local) where they applied for benefits. Individuals who are deaf, hard of hearing or have speech disabilities may contact USDA through the Federal Relay Service at (800) 877-8339. Additionally, program information may be made available in languages other than English.

To file a program complaint of discrimination, complete the USDA Program Discrimination Complaint Form, (AD-3027) found online at: http://www.ascr.usda.gov/complaint_filing_cust.html, and at any USDA office, or write a letter addressed to USDA and provide in the letter all of the information requested in the form. To request a copy of the complaint form, call (866) 632-9992. Submit your completed form or letter to USDA by:

Aries Don't take no for an answer. Your persistence will pay off. Past lessons and losses will help you make a better choice now. Plan a victory celebration.

Taurus Physical and personal improvements should be considered carefully, or you may omit an important component that will disrupt your plans. Don't underestimate someone trying to compete with you.

Gemini Emotions will drive you to finish something that has been going on for too long. Speak up and put an end to whatever is standing between you and what you want.

Cancer An excursion or shopping trip will lead to some interesting ideas and purchases. Share your intentions with someone who can help you with your plans.

Leo Don't feel the need to rush into something. Take the time to assess your situation and determine what it will take to get things done to your specifications and within your budget.

Virgo Be the one to make the first move. Set your sights on what you want to achieve, and strive to do the best you can. Personal changes look promising.

Libra Share your concerns with someone who can help or support you when the chips are down. Having a plan in mind will help your cause.

Scorpio Anger will be a waste of time. You may not agree with what someone else is doing, but using force or harsh words will not make matters better. Try reason and feasible solutions.

Sagittarius Your swagger will attract attention. Try not to overshadow someone you care about, or you may disrupt the relationship. Think before you act to avoid a dispute.

Capricorn Don't let your emotions get in the way of accomplishing something you want to pursue. A change at home will end up being more beneficial than anticipated.

Aquarius Don't let someone from your past cost you financially or emotionally. Personal changes need to be considered carefully. Don't lose sight of what's practical and what's fantasy.

Pisces A change in your personal life or to your lifestyle will be beneficial. If you make suggestions, you'll get help saving money. Share your feelings with someone special. EUGENIA LAST
